Designer	Leonardo Talarico

"The line is the trace from which I begin to conceive a product. Maximum expression of simplicity and dimensionless perfection. I enjoy to make it dialogue in space with other lines, imagining that they can be the projection of their shadow, able to give it form and function".

Ombre, a plural name for a single object created by simple lines. A tribute to essentiality, pure lines in favour of a functional complement, designed for the living room, the bedroom, and the office. A calendered tube is crossed by a linear tube; multiple passages of a clothes hanger and a valet stand are thus born. The metal and wood inserts dialogue together to make the structure sculptural, as well as defining a practical and comfortable element. Only the valet stand version is available.

Frame Load-bearing structure made of steel tubing $\varnothing 20$ mm and removable steel stand $\varnothing 360$ mm, matt black goffered powder-coated.	Terminals In solid ash or walnut wood, turned, with simple hook; both clothes rack and valet stand versions have a simple terminal $\varnothing 35$ mm.
